TWO TENNIS TITLES

Beats Miss Hooker in Singles -Wins With Miss Cerese Baker in Doubles.

Miss Rice's greater tournament experience and her ability to cover the court with greater despatch won her match with Mies Hooker. Many protracted rallies featured the match, two of the games going to deuce six times before Miss Hooker ended the fight by netting. A number of the other games went to deuce several times.

In the first set Miss Rice scored many of her points on placement shots and e-turns to the back base lines that found Miss Hooker out of position. The driving of Miss Rice was also the stronger In the second set Miss Hooker considerably, but was unable to fathout the craftler game of her rival. The final of the West Side doubles with Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Florence Ballin against Miss Edit White and Mrs. Robert Pope was post-poned until Thursday afternoon.

MISS RICE ATTAINS | HIGH LIGHTS AND SHADOWS | VIKINGS SURPRISE IN ALL SPHERES OF SPORT

With a sure knockout staring it in the face Germany is whimpering and is ready to jump through the ropes. The Teuton readiness to quit is born not so much of the will of the stay at homes as it is of the men in the field. This condition leads us into an interesting inquiry nto the true relation of sports to the man, and we must confess that it Miss Heien Rice of the Chapin School yesterday once more emphasized her superiority among the girl tennis players of the metropolitan district at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. Miss Rice, who some months ago won the Junior championship of this section, defeated Miss Adelaide Hooker in the final of the special tournament which Miss Florence Ballin started on Saturday morning. Miss Rice scored in straight sets, at 6—1, 6—1.

Not content with her new won laureis in singles, Miss Rice swent after the flatters sport more than its most ardent adherents would dare. It is interesting to note that boxing never got a hold in Germany, for the police

Not content with her new won laurels in singles, Mies Rice went after the honors in the doubles, too. With Miss Cerese Baker as a partner she defeated Miss Hooker and Miss Betty Baker in chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as men were left to fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as fight in the chain began to give way, as soon as fight in the chain began to give way. It was the boxer, the track and field athlete, the ball player, against the plodding Turn Vereiner, and the boxer soon tied the plodder into knots. While France was quick to note the very material relation of sport to the man not alone as a civic and physical but as a military unit, and has profited by that realization in this war, Germany ignored sport and now is paying the penalty. Sport is vital-it is growing more vital with every American, French and British victory, and when the war is over sport will be a bigger factor than ever before.

Attitude of Our Allies Is Changed Too.

The war already has changed the attitude of our allies toward what they, principally the British, had termed our over development in sport. Last year a French General who saw some of our sallors play football said: "If it is play it is far too rough; if it is war it is far too soft." He did not think that football was a good game for his soldiers. Now his opinion has changed. One year of American action on French soil has set the French a thinking. French soldiers are playing American football, as they are playing American baseball, and trying to outdo the American on track and field and in the boxing ring. Sport cannot be too virile. The times of sportsmanship to stop far ahead of that point where true sport ends and the brute steps in.

This war has been and is now a most powerful vindication of sport alaen to any guideavor so strongly if it had not had those qualities which make men and women more human, more humane and more sympathetic, and the state of the league match between La Sultana taken to any guideavor so strongly if it had not had those qualities which make men and women more human, more humane and more sympathetic, taken to any endeavor so strongly if it had not had those qualities which and Fulton soccer clevens at Astoria make men and women more human, more humane and more sympathetic, yet more capable to do. However, there were folk who looked on the sport lover as an idler and a setter of bad examples for the young. Boxing was ball Club was defeated by White Rose by 5 to 1 in the State league. regarded as a reprehensible sport by some, and football an act against by 6 to 1 in the State league.

Improvement, Yet Retardation, in College Sport.

Another week of the college term has passed and seen improvement, enthusiasts assembled yesterday at retardation, in the sport situation. For the latter blame the influence. Lenox Oval to learn of the death from et retardation, in the sport situation. For the latter blame the influenza. The week saw a crystallization of sentiment in favor of the resumption of sport at colleges which had announced that they had left the ring for the duration of the war. Cornell, Dartmouth, New York University, Tufts, Fordham, Brown and any number of others came on deck with the announcement that their Student Army Training Corps would resume football competition and soon would be in shape to tackle other college opponents. development is in line with the expected and within a fortnight should find the football situation decidedly favorable. the footbell situation decidedly favorable.

The task of the coach will be difficult because of the continual with. Officers' training camps. But the work of the coach will be less complex on the side of material. Everybody in every student corps, regardless of class affiliations, is eligible. At Lehigh and other universities even the drafted men taking War Department courses as airplane and motor truck mechanics are eligible for the eleven. Some of the colleges have resented mechanics are eligible for the eleven. Some of the colleges have resented match, this democratization of eligibility requirements, but as Foster Sanford pointed out the other day, "A man's a man. If he acts like a gentleman let him play. The more men in the game the merrier."

The influenza last Saturday brought on the cancellation of every Eastern football game with the exception of the Lehigh-League Island Marines contest. In most instances the local health authorities were not averse to the playing of the game in the open air and sunshine, but the college officials saw fit to impose quarantine restrictions. The influenza will be beaten soon and things will hum more busily than since our entry into the war.
